PURPOSE of CULTURE:

- PURPOSE OF CULTURE:

  Consistently provide a Positive Differentiating Experience with stakeholders to:

   Retain & Expand Relationships with Best/Most Valued Households (BMVHH)

   Attract & Retain Profitable Relationships

   Become an Employer of Choice for RIGHT Employees

   Maintain a Positive Image of the bank in each Market Served

As we strive to be leaders we should ask ourselves and our Team some critical questions that includes or defines Vision, Goals, Plans, Actions, Tracking Results, Follow-up and Feedback.

Why was this company started? What vision did the founder have? What did he/she think we could do better than anyone else? Are we achieving this vision? This is critical to the confinuing existence of the company and the business. It defines who we are, what we do and why we are successful. If the answers don't apply to our current business, we need to redefine our mission, or we will become obsolete.

Related to these questions, we could also ask ourselves: what do clients see in our brand? What do they think of when they hear our name? Why do they buy from us and not from our competitors? What do they relew when they do business with us? The answer to these questions will help you define your public image, your marketing message and your competitive advantage.

Now ask, how do my employees feel about the company? How do they feel about me? What do they think of our products? Do they understand our mission, share our vision and commit to delivering on it every day and with every client? These anewers should give you an idea whether you have buy in from your employees and have a sustainable model. You should be able to see a change in behavior.

How often do you ask these questions? Do you like the answers? Are you working on making them more positive? Are you willing to do the things that the unsuccessful will not do?

Professionals act as they MUST, not as they FEEL.
